I worked several out here in the wild west, Bob.
Great fun! And remember, our old rigs don't "chirp."

I am looking for the name/adresse of anyone who has actually participated in the design and manufacture of a vacuum tube.

Yes, this is a rather broadly stated request. I am inquiring on behalf of a fellow who is an engineering student in The Netherlands, and has fallen deeply, passionately, and madly in love with fire bottles. I know all the current engineering seems to be taking place in China and the former USSR, but I am hoping that some who formerly were engineers here in the US are still about and can be reached by mail (either snailmail or via I'net).

Thanks for the bandwidth.
